In the evening the various regimental associations held an enthusiastic meeting, and indulged in many hearty handshakings.

On Wednesday morning the public reception was held at the court-house at 10 o'clock, Among the prominent personages on the speakers' stand were ex-President R. B. Hayes, General J. Warren Keifer, ex-Governor Noyes, Congressman McKinley, General Buckland, of Fremont; Hon. George Hoadly, Democratic candidate for governor, and Dr. Scott, of Warren. H. M. Upon me devolves the duty of welcoming you upon this interesting occasion to the State of Ohio. The citizens of this State, and especially of this city, have made the most ample arrangements for the comfortable accommodation of the great throng present, to the end that you may be able to remember your visit to the capital city of the State as among the most enjoyable occasions of the kind.

He spoke of the sacrifiees that all had endured, and the great results that had followed all our wars, and declared that in this meeting all, the blue and the gray alike, rejoice that we are American citizens. In conclusion, as the chief executive officer of a State that sent more than 300,000 men to battle, he bade them thrice welcome to Ohio's capital.

After a short address by Mayor Walcutt, the meeting broke up, many of the veterans attending the meeting at the City Hall of the ex-prisoners of war. On the walls of the City Hall were hung small banners, bearing the names of various prisoners, while at the back of the stage was an allegorical painting representing the Southern prison-pen and its frightful work of death. On the upper part of the picture are the soldiers and members of the Grand Army of words: "In memory of the 38,000 comrades the Republic we can show our good-will to our | who perished in Southern military prisons.
